1. Tell us a bit about yourself (doesn't need to be too personal)

I live in Biwang central village, Madi Kiloc Parish, Padibe West Subcounty, Lamwo District in Northern Uganda. I'm a peasant farmer.

2. How has this reforestation project changed life in your community or for your family personally?

The trees planted are still young but it has made other neighbors show interest in planting trees.

People are beginning to show more interest into planting trees

3. What does planting trees mean to you personally, beyond just the work?

Traditionally, planting trees is a way of preserving our land boundaries.

Of late, through the training of ISCOT and also the harsh sunshine that we receive, I have realized that we need to plant trees in order to receive more rains for us to be able to cultivate

4. Before the project started, what were some of the biggest challenges your community faced with the land or environment?

Very hot weather and poor crop yields. Too much strong winds destroying people's huts

5. What skills or opportunities have you gained from being part of this project?

I'm able to show better planting and maintenance skills to my neighbors and community in case someone needs my help on tree planting. This is possible through the training gotten from ISCOT.

The planted trees are an opportunity to preserve our land

6. If you could share one message with the supporters of this project, what would you like to say to them?

Appreciate them for the support for seedlings and request them to continue supporting our farmers with more seedling since they are showing interest and interested to fight the global warming in our community.
